

Daylight Savings Time

The issue was considered in 2017 in the context of private member Bill 203, Alberta Standard Time Act, a bill that was defeated. For the tourism industry, many issues surfaced under the previous review from concerns with economic implications (eg. air, rail & bus scheduling) to mental health, childcare and outdoor workplace safety matters. When approached by Service Alberta for comment, TIAA reiterated many of the concerns raised from the 2017 review, including a recommendation that a thorough economic impact analysis of the various policy options be undertaken. Service Alberta is due to tender a report for ministerial consideration as early as March.
